

This is a detailed map of Schoenewad County, New York. The map shows the county's irregular shape, bounded by Schenectady County to the north, Saratoga County to the northeast, and Rensselaer County to the south and west. The Hudson River flows along the eastern border. The map is divided into numerous townships, including West, East, North, and South townships in the northern part, and others like Gloversville, Kinderhook, and Rotterdam in the southern part. Numerous villages and post offices are marked, such as Gloversville, Kinderhook, Rotterdam, and Westerlo. A scale bar at the top right indicates a distance of 2 1/2 miles. A compass rose in the top left corner points North. The map is framed by a decorative border.
